The DeltaStock Team, December 2, 2005 Not all that we like about holidays is what we give. For me, the real gift I receive each year is to see the love, care and creativity that my family has for me, especially my children. Of course, these days are wonderful - we live in a very nice home and have a lot of help with our children - but it's been a long time since they were babies and I had any special gift to give them, if you know what I mean. So, to go back to my question of what I get for Christmas, here's my wish for 2005 - 1. For my wife, Marion: The love, care and generosity she gives my family and me each and every day. 2. For my children: The knowledge that they have a wonderful Mom and Dad. 3. For me: The ability to spend time with my children and enjoy all they do and all they are. This year, for the first time, I spent Christmas with my family. I'm not one to complain about not having it at home with my children, but I love spending it with them. For the first time in a while, it seems to me, we don't have any shopping to do, no laundry to do, no cooking to do and, perhaps, no cleaning to do. I'm not quite sure how to explain it, but it just feels so much like Christmas to me when I'm not preparing and doing the usual things at this time of year. In the past, my children have always seemed to know what to do to help get me a present I didn't expect - a special gift - that's something they still have this year. I'm not sure if they realize it or not, but there are so many things they do for me, and I simply cannot list them all. My children know I love them very much. I make it a point to say it every chance I get. That's one of the things they may not realize is how much they mean to me. For example, on
